UNR Professor of African American History Greta de Jong presents You Can't Eat Freedom: Struggles for Social Justice After the Civil Rights Movement

Wednesday, February 15 @ 6:30 p.m.

Black activism continued beyond the 1960s in efforts to secure economic reforms aimed at creating jobs, improving social services, and enabling all citizens to lead lives of dignity and autonomy. The story of these efforts, and the opposition they encountered from white supremacists, sheds light on current issues such as persistent racism and the plight of working-class communities—black and white—that were devastated by job losses and economic decline in the decades after the 1960s.

Coding Camp

Tues - Fri, February 21 - 24 @ 3-5 p.m.

An introduction to computer science for kids designed to demystify code and show that anybody can learn the basics. Choose from a variety of fun projects and earn a Certificate of Completion. Registration required. There are 10 seats available, but more can come if you bring your own device. Best for children ages 3rd grade and up.

Display Cases & Art Exhibit:

Soren's work, pays homage to the people and events that inspire him. His influences range from Peter Higgs to Al Held. He believes that the most creative people are scientists working on the cutting edge of cosmology and particle physics with theoretical scientists asking questions that hover on the boundaries of human perception. Soren's interests lie in giving those theories a visual language.
