A Welcome from Acting
Library Director Stacy McKenzie

Washoe County Library EXPLORER

June – August 2025

Welcome to the Summer edition of the Washoe County Library Explorer magazine! We might not usually think of summer as a transitional season, like spring or fall, but every season is a season of change. At Washoe County Library System, we remain committed to delivering excellent library service — technology assistance, arts and educational programming, a safe and welcoming environment for everyone, an expansive collection of materials, and more — no matter how the seasons change around us.

Summer brings the return of the Summer Reading Challenge, which runs from June 1 through July 31. This year's theme is "Color Our World," and we invite readers of all ages to participate and earn prizes for reading and completing fun activities. More information about the 2025 Summer Reading Challenge can be found on pages 12–13.

Around Northern Nevada, summer brings an influx of arts, including the Burning Man festival near Gerlach in August, and the annual Artown festival in Reno throughout July. Washoe County Library System is proud to partner with Artown. Learn more about our Artown events on page 4.

But Washoe County Library locations are arts destinations all year around. Several of our libraries have dedicated art galleries that feature rotating exhibitions, and we present free musical and theatrical performances throughout the year. You can learn more about how our libraries approach gallery curation by reading the interview with Russell Dorn, who curates for the Incline Village Library, on page 5.

This is a big year for the Incline Village Library, which this summer celebrates 20 years in its current location. Many residents of Reno and Sparks might not be familiar with the Incline Village Library, but it's a beautiful and easily accessible facility with an art gallery, a robust materials collection, and all the services you expect from a Washoe County Library location. Be sure to add a visit to the library to the itinerary of your next trip up to Lake Tahoe. Learn more about their 20-year anniversary celebration on page 8.

Change can be exciting! And here at Washoe County Library, we're ready to help you manage all the changes in your life. Whether you're a preschooler just learning to read, a student researching a school paper, a worker revamping a resume, or a retiree looking to learn a new hobby, we're here to help. No matter the season.

Meet a Librarian! Russell Dorn

What's your role at the Incline Village Library?

My official title is Library Assistant II. I think every library employee wears a lot of hats. There's the customer service element to it, of course, and the handling the books, but then there's a lot of stuff that we do behind the scenes. I'm the gallery point person for the Incline Village Library. I do the paperwork and set up dates for receptions and the galleries. But it's really a team effort here at this branch and at a lot of the others. We'll have staff members go to craft fairs or a local restaurant, and they'll see art there, and maybe grab a card, or if they run into the artist, maybe drop my email. And then I'll get in touch and say, "Hey, would you be interested in showing your art here?" It's really engaging for the community.

When people think of libraries, they might just think of books, but do you think the library is also an arts destination?

The library is an arts destination. Six artists a year at this branch, and several other branches have galleries to showcase local talent. On top of that, we have art-related programs and events for all ages. We recently had a three-day art camp for kids. We have Lifelong Learning and Wind-Down Wednesday for older adults where they can learn new things like oil pastels or ikebana flower arranging. For teens, we have our brand-new chalk wall. They can follow the prompts I put out monthly, wacky ideas like animals doing weird things or vegetables being sentient. It's just a fun way to show their art. I also tie in art to some of my Teen Tuesday programming. We'll do 3D modeling or linocut. They're really into Magic: The Gathering, so we customized a deck box for their commander decks and printed those out. And we have an ongoing felting and ongoing memoir-writing club, so we have every medium going on here.

What's your art background?

I've always gravitated toward art. I have a twin brother, and we've always done projects together. We've dabbled in game design. We have a free website for kids that's all about Halloween monsters being ironically nice, like a toothless werewolf or a sun-loving vampire. Writing I pursued to differentiate myself from my brother. He stayed with graphic design, and I went into writing. I've always loved horror since my grandfather, at family reunions, used to do scary story nights. I've put out some self-published stuff for kids and some adult horror that's made it into pro markets. And I'm working on a short story collection.

Tell us about the Shivery program.

It started during the COVID-19 shutdown. I wanted to continue engaging with the community, and I love scary stories. Washoe residents submit original scary stories, staff narrates them, and then I created a Crypt Keeper parody character called the Script Keeper who introduces each story. Incline Village staff film these segments with me. I edited the first season, and then the following seasons we've passed it off to internet library staffer Tim, who's done a great job of editing it. But it's a lot of work, and it takes a whole team to get it done with such a quick turnaround. We get the stories in early October, and then get it out by Halloween or earlier, if we have multiple episodes, which we usually do. Last year, we had a lot of entries and had to turn it into a contest of which ones we thought were the most engaging. And that was a lot of fun. My manager, Amanda, and I went to the school because a lot of the students in the area had submitted and gotten in the top 10, so it was great to talk to an auditorium of 200 kids and hand out celebratory buttons. It's probably my favorite program I'm involved with because it's a great way to celebrate the art of writing and my favorite genre, horror.

"The library is an arts destination."

Russell Dorn
Gallery Curator
Library Assistant II
Incline Village Library

What are some other programs you're involved with?

The Block Party and Summer Reading Challenge Kickoff, Camp STEAM, IV Quad, Pokémon GO at the library, Teen Tuesdays, escape rooms, KUNR's On the Kid's Shelf. I host the occasional Story Time. I'm also part of the Explorer team. It's a great team that works well under a time crunch pressure and remains artistic while getting this information out there in new and engaging ways. There's a lot of events happening in the library system, and the Explorer makes it easier to see what's going on.

What's the last great book you read?

Pink Slime by Fernanda Trias. It's a dystopian horror novel where a pink mist or the crimson wind is wiping out life in the area. It comes and goes with the fog. But it's really more of a character study of the main character trying to come to terms with it and adapt to that situation. I love when horror meets literary fiction, and this one fits the bill.

What's a library resource you wish more people knew about?

Discover and Go Museum passes. Washoe County residents can get free or discounted passes to local museums. It's a great way to celebrate art and history!

Library News

Incline Village Library celebrates 20 years

Join us at the Incline Village Library on Saturday, June 7, from 11 am to 2 pm for our Block Party and Summer Reading Challenge Kickoff, during which we will also celebrate the library's 20th anniversary in our current building.

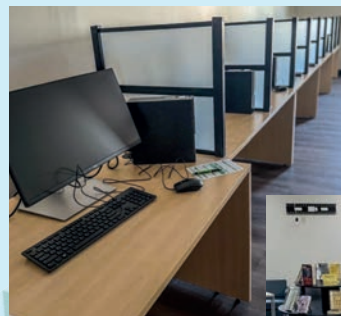

Nestled in the High Sierra near the shores of Lake Tahoe, the Incline Village Library serves a diverse community of local and visiting patrons. In 1966, this library began as a partnership between the Incline Elementary School and Washoe County Library System. It was the first school and public library partnership in Nevada. In 1978, the library and its staff moved to a standalone 6,000-square-foot building. In 2005, a new 10,600-square-foot building was constructed next door, catching the attention of the American Library Association, and earning an honor for its unique interior design. The building sits on the ancestral lands of the Washoe, and its Young People's Library features a traditional galais dungal, or winter house, that acts as the backdrop for baby and toddler story time programs. This branch also houses the system's collection of all things Tahoe, including guidebooks, local history, and maps. For more information about the Incline Village Library, visit washoelibrary.org/inclinevillage.

Washoe County Library System budget update

Washoe County Library System will maintain a flat budget with no increases or reductions, which will help the system meet Washoe County's goals of maintaining services and avoiding layoffs in Fiscal Year 2026. From the library's budget, $1.3 million will be reallocated to the County's centralized General Fund. These funds will be retained for library use upon approval by the Library Board of Trustees in the coming year. The Library Board will continue to discuss future operational and budgetary needs for Fiscal Year 2027. For more information about upcoming Library Board of Trustees meetings, visit washoelibrary.org/LBOT.

Renovated Senior Center Library reopens

The Washoe County Senior Center reopened on May 16, 2025. The nearly $2.8 million remodel of the facility includes a remodeled library. The new and improved Senior Center Library boasts beautiful new floors, refreshed furniture, and a reimagined layout. New "Royale Reading Room" signage is part of the Senior Center's retro Nevada-themed redesign, inspired by the charm of classic Reno and Las Vegas. We are proud to unveil these exciting updates that transformed the Senior Center into a true community treasure. For more information about the Senior Center Library, visit washoelibrary.org/seniorcenter.
